Market Commentary

Fears of a global trade war emerged in Q1 2025 as President Trump's foreign and tariff policies increased market volatility. Over the quarter, the Bank of England cut interest rates by 0.25% while the US Federal Reserve kept rates unchanged, preferring to take a wait-and-see approach to the impact of tariffs on prices.

Over the quarter, Trump initially announced the US would impose a series of tariffs on Canada, Mexico and China. He later announced tariffs globally on steel, aluminium and vehicles, indicating no country is exempt from US trade policies. The speed and extent of the proposed tariffs caught investors by surprise, sparking widespread uncertainty in global equity markets, which ended the quarter down 4%. Falling consumer sentiment and concerns of a US economic slowdown exacerbated the decline for the US equity market which returned -7.1% over Q1. US technology stocks, such as Tesla and Nvidia, key drivers of performance over the previous years, were hit particularly hard over the quarter as the high valuations of these stocks made them vulnerable to a downturn. Europe was the best performing equity region over the quarter (7.6%) following announcements of large government spending, given the expectation of a lower reliance on the US in the future.

Bond markets had a positive quarter, with uncertainty nudging investors to move into less risky assets, such as corporate and government bonds which returned 0.6% and 0.5%, respectively. High yield bonds also had a positive quarter, returning 1.2%. The dollar weakened over the quarter as falling confidence in the US seeped into markets. This will have negatively impacted returns on US equities for UK investors.
